SECOND EDITION My Salad Days by JUSTINE INGERSOLL.

A FEW weeks ago, when we unearthed and advertised some copies of this book, the demand was so large (and unexpected) that we were sold out within 24 hours. We then gave our Printer an order for a second edition (fac-simile of the original) which is ready today.

The main point about the book, aside from the more-than-local reputation of the author as a Salad maker, is that a majority of the receipts are either original or else made up in an original manner—entirely different from the stereotyped methods given in Cook Books.

The article on "Preparing Vegetables for Salads", "Garnishing" and "The Mayonnaise and French Dressing" in particular, appeal to the common-sense Housekeeper.

Each copy is guaranteed to contain but two pages of unobtrusive advertising and the Publisher's original price was 50 cts. Now (and here only) 15 cts. (By mail 2 cts. additional).
